

AT THE 'VILLE.

A Children's Service.

The "Children's Day" concert for which the Sunday school boys and girls of the Congregational church have been preparing for several weeks was held at the church Sunday evening and all unite in placing it among the most pleasing celebrations of the occasion ever held in Lyndonville. The success of the concert was in a large measure due to the untiring work of Miss Alice Clark Hutchinson and Mrs. Charles G. Norris, who had entire charge of the arrangements, and the training of the children. The church was prettily decorated with ferns, wild flowers and potted plants, the altar rail being banked with maiden-hair ferns and daisies. A pleasing feature of the program was a "Daisy Song" by 16 little girls dressed in white, and each carrying a bunch of white daisies. During this seven of the girls gave brief recitations. Bruce Wakelind sang a solo in splendid style, and the trio, Josie Hutchins, Care LeBourveau and Geneva Wilmot was very charming. Another number which deserves much praise was the singing of "His Banner O'er Us," by six boys: Robert Wilson, Sumner Stuart, Paul Cheney, Aubrey Gray, Paul Weston and Gilbert Campbell. Altogether it was a very worthy celebration of this delightful festival and will be long remembered not only by the children but by all who were present.
